Anikó Dobricza finished her studies at the Budapest University of Economic Sciences with the specialisation finance and accounting in 1999.

During her studies she was granted two scholarships that enabled her to spend two semesters at an Austrian and at a French university studying international banking and finance.

As a third year PhD student, her research focuses on supportable home-financing subsidies and mortgage lending. She has been teaching finance at the Széchenyi University in Győr (Hungary) for five years.
